

The search for passion inspires my work. I feel that religion, sex, and politics often act as substitutes for true passion. I am exploring my own search for passion by weaving personal stories and fantasies into the framework of traditional religious art and contemporary images of passion, such as pop icons, sex manuals and media images of politicians on the campaign trail.